Silent Film Series at The Hollywood Theatre

The General

with The Play House & The Love Nest

September 28th, 2014 - 1:00 PM

Join us as we kick off our Fall Silent Film Series at the Hollywood Theatre. Our first offering is the 1926 classic "The General". In it, Buster Keaton portrays the passionate engineer Jonnie. When the Civil War begins, he is turned down for service because he's more valuable as an engineer. His love Annabelle thinks it's because he is a coward. When Union spies capture his train ("The General") with Annabelle on board, Jonnie must rescue both of his loves. 107 minutes.

In The Play House (1921) - After waking up from his wacky dream, a theater stage hand inadvertently causes havoc everywhere he works. 18 minutes.

In The Love Nest (1923) - In an attempt to forget his lost sweetheart, Buster takes a long trip at sea where he boards a whaling ship with a strict captain. 20 minutes.

OLD BUSINESS

It was recommended last month to obtain a hard drive which could be configured as a clone for the drive in the Hauptwerk/Uniflex computer on the Nelson Memorial Organ. MOVED (Bryant) to obtain a 3.5" drive and enclosure and cloning software. Estimate: $100.00. (Motion CARRIED)

Terry gave an update on the Buster Keaton film festival.

MOVED (Bryant) to authorize the payment of 50% of the cost of dinner for the ATOS Summer Youth Adventure (Motion CARRIED).

Mike Bryant apologized to Lou Paff for forgetting to bring the keys and gate code for the mini-storage unit in Oregon City. He will get them to Lou during the SYA.

NEW BUSINESS

Mike delivered the candidate statements and ballots to Max Brown for the upcoming board election. The time and place for the general meeting (at which the ballots will be opened and counted) will be announced as soon as the location availability is confirmed.

Steve Jarvis will handle the duplication of the statements and ballots.

As we had been "bumped" from our normal meeting space into the main dining room, which was particularly noisy and not conducive to conducting business, the board decided to postpone any further general discussions until the August meeting.

Meeting adjourned at 7:38pm.
